 Closing! If I had to identify the step or action which is the most troublesome in Round Dancing, throughout the phases, I would not pick an advanced action like the Spiral or a sophisticated figure like the Same Foot Lunge but rather the good old basic "close". We all know that it consists of bringing the free foot alongside the supporting foot, put that foot down firmly and transfer our weight onto it. It is, if you want, an extremely small "side". Simple enough, isn't it? Why then, do we regularly run into trouble in its execution? Why do we "touch" instead of closing, why do we step in place rather than bringing our feet together, why do we step forward, back, or side rather than properly closing? I do not have the answer, but this dance offers an opportunity to train on closing. It's closing time: take advantage of it, use the material! One hint: Closing is an uninteresting step if our feet are already together. Make sure that the step preceding a “close” is a good size step (forward, back, or side) so that you can “make a statement” by purposefully and determinedly closing.

Leonard Norman Cohen (born 21 September 1934) is a Canadian singer, songwriter, musician, poet, novelist and philosopher who has been inducted into the American Rock and Roll Hall of Fame and both the Canadian Music Hall of Fame and the Canadian Songwriters Hall of Fame. He is also a Companion of the Order of Canada, the nation's highest civilian honor.

Not only does Leonard Cohen write good songs to attractive music but he has the kind of deep voice that I find irresistible. Definitely one of our very favorite artists. We wrote a dance to another song of his, “Everybody Knows”(Cha V+1).
