Arielle Dombasle is a very impressive French-American artist, with many talents: actress, singer, dancer, model, director, she tries everything and succeeds brilliantly every time. As a singer her albums covers a remarkable palette of styles, from New Age electronica to old religious songs. She was born in Connecticut of French parents but spent her early childhood in Mexico where her grandfather was the French ambassador. Highly intelligent, Arielle speaks French, Spanish and English with the same impeccable fluency. She has a beautiful versatile voice and sings opera as well as country tunes with the same efficiency. She is married to Bernard-Henri Lévy, a French philosopher and writer. They were married in 1993 on the Cote d’Azur where they have a villa and still live today. For her “French Kiss” album (just released Oct 2015), composed of very “fifties” songs, she partnered with the Hillbilly Moon Explosion, a European-based rock group based in Zurich, Switzerland (Emmanuela Hutter, Oliver Baroni, Duncan James and Sylvain Petite) who have toured all over Europe to great acclaim.
