In spite of the song (Sono un Italiano vero – I'm a true Italian) Rocco Granata (born 16 August 1938) is a Belgian singer, songwriter, and accordionist. Although he was born in Calabria, southern Italy, his parents immigrated to Belgium when he was aged ten and his father was a coal miner. Rocco played accordion and toured Belgium with his band. He released the songs "Manuela / Marina" as a single in 1959; "Marina" became an international hit, reaching #1 in Belgium and in Germany as well as charting across Europe and in the United States. It sold over one million copies in Germany alone, and was awarded a gold disc. After the success of "Marina", Granata toured the world, including dates at Carnegie Hall. He also appeared in Italy at the San Remo Festival in 1961. Rocco later became a successful record producer. In March 2000 he was awarded the ZAMU Lifetime Achievement Award by the Belgian music industry. Granata has released some 65 albums over the course of his career.
